COURSE OBJECTIVES

World politics has been in a state of extraordinary transition. Today's world of international relations is an arena that links domestic and foreign affairs around the globe, raising a host of complex issues and questions. What are the most important global issues? What relations will the U.S. have with members of international community? How can we end the terrorist attacks? How can the international community manage the earth's environment so as to prevent horrific tragedies like the tsunami and Hurricane Katrina? How serious are the nuclear threats posed by North Korea and Iran? World politics today poses a real challenge to our understanding, yet we believe there are keys that will open the doors for us. We believe that a broad and self-conscious theoretical orientation remains the best resource for comprehending and coping with change, now and in the years ahead.

As an introduction to the dynamics of international politics, this course includes in depth analysis of the actors, structures, and issues that make up the essence of international relations. We are going to study competing theoretical perspectives, state and non-state actors, the evolution of international system, cooperation and conflict, globalization and interdependence, international institutions, human rights, environmental pressures, population problem, and other important issues in world affairs.

COURSE REQUIREMENT AND GRADING POLICY

Students are expected to (1) complete and study carefully all required reading; (2) address significant questions and articulate well-informed positions on key issues, and (3) follow current events and news analysis.

Students will be evaluated on the basis of their performance of one midterm exam (30%), class participation including two participation reports (20%), a 5-6 page analysis paper (10%), a presentation of the paper (10%), and a final exam (30%). You have a great opportunity to participate in the College of Charleston Model United Nations on March 23-24, 2007 and write a report about your participation (10%). The lowest ten percent of your grade will be dropped from your grade for the course. Class participation is desired and highly encouraged. Detailed guidelines for papers and exams will be provided. No late paper or exam will be accepted without prior written permission.

As the lectures and classroom discussions are an essential part of the course, attendance is mandatory. A class sign-up sheet will be distributed at the beginning of each class. You are allowed a maximum of two unexcused absences during the semester; additional absences, unless you can clearly prove personal emergencies or illnesses, will result in a loss of 2 points for each absence.

Any student with a diagnosed learning or psychological disability which impedes your carrying out required course work, or which requires accommodations such as extended time on examinations, should advise me during the first two weeks of the course so we can review possible arrangements for reasonable accommodations.

Academic honesty is very important! When you enrolled in the College of Charleston, you signed the Honor Code. I expect you to abide to the code and it is the only way to maintain the integrity and value of your degree. You will fail this course if you have found to have cheated on an exam or plagiarized any portion of your paper. I will turn the case of Honor Code violation to the Honor Board and vigorously pursue further disciplinary action. Everyone must highly value academic integrity and abide to the Honor Code.
