This course will introduce you to thinking about the idea of politics and political activity conceptually, analytically and historically. This course focuses on political philosophy: a method of thinking about politics that centers on normative questions (e.g. how should we live together?). We will explore the meaning of some basic theoretical concepts related to politics and we will trace how those concepts have been understood in other contexts. We will be reading a variety of political philosophers, ancient, modern and contemporary. The semester is divided in three parts. In the first we will consider what it means to study political philosophy, why people live together, and how different political philosophers understand human motivation. In the second part of the semester we will look more closely at the social contract tradition and the question of justice. In the third part we will read criticisms of the social contract tradition and democracy and consider contemporary debates around class and identity. In a somewhat different context we will also read a selection of stories from Octavia Butler’s collection of short fiction Bloodchild. We will use these stories as settings within which theoretical ideas come to life. At the end of the semester you will have a variety of answers to some of the following questions: What is justice? Is freedom desirable? What are the origins of the State? What makes an ideal ruler? Which form of government is best? What makes a good citizen? How can we change the world?

Course Objectives:

This course focuses on the explication, analysis and comparison of political philosophy texts. We read works from figures ancient, modern and contemporary. Students will acquire skills in explication: the explanation of what a text is saying; analysis: the interpretation of what a text means, both in its own context and for us; and comparison: the ways in which arguments about equality or freedom (for example) relate to one another. In class discussion, papers and exams students will learn to examine, interpret and relate texts and arguments.

Learning Outcomes:

Upon successful completion of this course students will be able to:
- demonstrate knowledge of key thinkers and concepts over time (exams and papers)
- compare thinkers on similar concepts (papers and exam essays)
- use concepts to analyze new situations (short story responses, papers, exam essays)
- evaluate interpretations of concepts (papers and exam essays)
- explain the nature and value of normative thinking (papers and exam essays)

Required Books:

Plato
- Republic
Andrew Bailey and others, Eds.
- Broadview Anthology of Social and Political Thought (SPT)
Assignments:

- Papers (4) 40%
- Final exam: 15%
- Short story responses (5) 15%
- Quizzes (4) 20%
- Participation (including journals and reflections) 10%

All work for this class will be submitted on OAKS. More information about exams, papers, quizzes and the short story responses is at the end of the syllabus. Attendance is not required, but participation is important! If you get sick, please contact me.

Grading scale:

- A (93-100)
- A- (90-92)
- B+ (87-89)
- B (84-86)
- B- (80-83)
- C+ (77-79)
- C (74-76)
- C- (70-73)
- D+ (67-69)
- D (64-66)
- D- (60-63)
- F (0-59)

Class Meetings:

When meeting in person we will have no more than 11 students in Maybank 316 in any given class day. During the first three weeks online we will devise a system for who will be in class on each day. These in person classes will be based on discussion questions that students who are not in class on that day will see and respond to (on OAKS). Additionally, for each in class day I will look for volunteers to provide a summary of classroom discussion (this is a good way to get participation points if you do not like to participate out loud!).

Any student who is feeling sick should not come to their assigned in person class and contact me. During any period of being sick you will complete the class online. Students who are completing the class online will be expected to regularly participate in the online discussion boards.

Questions?

Any questions about the syllabus or about class scheduling and management during the semester, go to the OAKS question thread if you have questions – I am sure others will appreciate your asking!

Final Exam: Online on 12/9

Short story responses: You will write responses to each of the five short stories that we read from Octavia Butler’s collection Bloodchild. Check the syllabus for those due dates. The responses are due in the OAKS dropbox before class on the day the story is being discussed. There is a late submission dropbox. 2 points (out of 10) are automatically deducted for late short story responses. Responses MUST be submitted via the dropbox. I will accept no submissions in hardcopy.

Responses can take one of two forms:

1) Focus on a passage/quote from the story that you found particularly interesting/insightful/important. Include the passage (no more the 5 sentences is enough for a good passage) and analyze what the passage is saying and why you think the passage matters either to the story or to the theme that the story is addressing.

2) Focus on a theme from our class discussions and other readings and explain (with examples) how the story connects to that theme.

Response papers will be at least one page, double spaced (and should not be more than two pages, double-spaced). You should give a focused and detailed, but brief, explanation of either the passage you chose or the theme you are addressing. Do not summarize the story. I would suggest reading the story and then taking notes on what captured your imagination. Then look back over the class notes for the preceding classes and see where there might be connections. Be sure that your responses show an engagement with the story and a use of details to explain your interest in the story.

Class reflection: Each class will have a reflection question posed at the beginning of class. Each student must have a note taking system that can also be used for class reflection prompts. The reflection questions will allow you to make connections between your own perspectives and the concerns of the authors we read. You will not turn in your reflection. However, twice during the semester you will turn in a larger reflection on a number of these prompts.

Quizzes: After each unit there will be a quiz on OAKS covering the main terms and ideas that we discuss in each unit. Those terms will be highlighted in the lectures (and on powerpoint). These quizzes will be primarily short answer and will be timed and have a window for access. If you are sick and unable to access the quiz in that window of time please contact me!
Papers:

There are four short (3-5 pages) papers for this class. I will hand out prompts for these papers one week prior to the due date and the papers are due on OAKS. No matter the paper assignment be sure to:

1) Explain the argument of your chosen text
2) Present an argument about that text based upon your own interpretation
3) Defend your argument using evidence from the text

You must use quotations from the texts in question in order to provide evidence for both your explication and your analysis. You will be graded on the clarity of your analysis (this is more important than whether I agree with your particular argument).

Each paper should include the paper worksheet (filled out!) found on OAKS. Additionally papers must be properly cited. All citations should be made in accordance with the guidelines set out in the Political Science Department’s referencing guide (available online at Political Science Department webpage: http://polisci.cofc.edu/documents/12policitationguide.pdf).

Any failure to cite materials used for papers in this class is considered plagiarism. Plagiarism is pretending as if the words and ideas of another are in fact yours. This includes a failure to use quotations, a failure to indicate when you are paraphrasing and the failure to give credit to the author whose ideas you are using. Plagiarism is a violation of the Honor Code and will be treated as such.

1) All papers will be typed and double-spaced with page numbers.
2) Attach the paper worksheet to all papers (worksheet on OAKS under assignments in Content tab)
3) All citations will be in accordance with the departmental referencing guide: http://polisci.cofc.edu/documents/12policitationguide.pdf
4) Extensions may be approved 24 hours before the paper is due
5) Students will retain a copy of the paper, either on your computer or in hard copy
6) Plagiarism will be prosecuted by the honor board and students who plagiarize will fail this class.

Further information about the Honor Code and Academic Integrity can be found at: http://deanofstudents.cofc.edu/honor-system/studenthandbook/

Additional policies:

OAKS:

OAKS, including Gradebook, will be used for this course throughout the semester to provide the syllabus and class materials and grades for each assignment, which will be regularly posted.

Accommodations: The College will make reasonable accommodations for persons with documented disabilities. Students should apply for services at the Center for Disability Services/SNAP located on the first floor of the Lightsey Center, Suite 104. Students approved for accommodations are responsible for notifying me as soon as possible and for contacting me one week before accommodation is needed.

Food and Housing Resources
Many CofC students report experiencing food and housing insecurity. If you are facing challenges in securing food (such as not being able to afford groceries or get sufficient food to eat every day) and housing (such as lacking a safe and stable place to live), please contact the Dean of Students for support (http://studentaffairs.cofc.edu/about/salt.php). Also, you can go to http://studentaffairs.cofc.edu/student-food-housing-insecurity/index.php to learn about food and housing assistance that is available to you. In addition, there are several resources on and off campus to help. You can visit the Cougar Pantry in the Stern Center (2nd floor), a student-run food pantry that provides dry-goods and hygiene products at no charge to any student in need.

Weather: In the event of class being cancelled on account of the weather, I expect you to use OAKS and to have your books available. Every effort will be made to have discussions online during a weather event.
